Biography of the filmmaker

Philippe Pasquini was born in 1967. Since his young times, he has been always focused on images and expression.

After completing his studies of both comedian and visual artist (at the Conservatoire National Supérieur d'Art Dramatique in Toulon, and the Beaux-Arts in Toulon and Paris), he started with filmmaking, acting and stage designing for theatre, video and cinema.

His first filmmaking experiences were all related to experimental movies : "Dracula mix", "Le moi-Christ", "Pauvre Poseïdon".

Later on, he realised films for the BlaBla theatre company based on BlaBla's films working rules, which means that images are collectively shooted, then all the rushes are shared so the story comes out really at the editing.

Movies titles: "Ne rions pas des vampires" ("We shouldn't laugh about the vampires"),

"Lupus", "N'ayez pas peur du Loup-Garou" ("Don't be afraid about the Werewolf").

He has been attending a professional program with AFDAS and Filmigood on puppets and filmmaking.

Then he realised a set of self-performances movies : "Cyrano Solo", "La Don Quijotta paranoia", "Sauvons Robinson!"

He has obtained the 2nd price from the public for "La Don Quijotta paranoia" at the international short length amateurs movies festival of Sens (Clap 89 in 2006).

He is presently working on other movies projects based on other mythic characters.
